The Securities and Exchange Commission (“Commission”) respectfully requests that this honorable Court dismiss the above-captioned matter.

On January 23, 2013, the Commission moved in camera, pursuant to Section 21(h)(5) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, 15 U.S.C. § 78u(h)(5), for an ex parte order delaying for 90 days the notice required by the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 when the Commission seeks customer financial records. The Court granted the motion on January 24, 2013. After the Court granted a request for a 90-day extension, the Commission was required to provide customer notice of its subpoenas for financial records by July 24, 2013. The Commission provided the required notices on July 17, 2013. This Court then unsealed the record on July 22, 2013, and placed a redacted copy of the Commission's initial filings on the publicly-available docket.

Accordingly, there is nothing more to be done in this matter and the Commission respectfully requests that it be closed.
